HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 57H, 1888. THE support that has been accorded to the . Referring to the training of midwives Lady DUFFERIN says :- "There is no doubt whatever that the lives of thousands of women and infants are yearly sacrificed, and that a still larger number of women are condemned to barrenness and to a life of ill-health and suffering by the violence and by the aggressive character of the treatment they are subjected to, from her commander, Captain Martin, $45 when, in nine cases out of ten, gentleness, had been earned, but in consequence of some patience, fresh sir, cleanliness, and quiet smuggled Nankeens being found on board the would be sufficient to bring them safely steamer at Wubu, the steamer was fined by through a common experience of womangiven which show that in many cases it is as were on board, as soon as he knew. Colonel Bonsson is about to return the Chinese the same unnecessary cruelty of home, and several others. This exedus will cost treatment that is set out in the memorandum before us. There is an impression that are printed and ready to be posted calling upon the women of China, leading more natural all Chinese merchants, and shopkeepers to lives, suffer less than European women in childbirth, and with the hardy labouring classes, from the lat January next, with a view to levywhich are those of whom Europeana see most, this is probably true, but as soon as we go a ex-Governor and now Minister Roza as Presistep upwards in the social scale, the case is dent, Srs. It is not only in childbirth, however, but in cost Peking nine million tacks, but Wu Tackeng cases of illness generally among women, that the need for female medical aid exists. At Canton, at Tientein, and at other-places in China there are lady doctors whose work has had most gratifying results. A similar field exists in Hongkong, where a lady doctor cepted at Peking without further enquiry; but might do much good, not only in actual practice herself, but also in the training of young criminated by the Censor, if they are really persons to rander medical aid to their couptry-women. The medical ladies employed under the National Association in India are grouped in the following grades: -(1) lady doctors; (2) female assistant surgeons; (3) female hospital assistants. The names are the same as those given to men who, in the Government Medical Service, take corresponding degrees, the word "female" being prefixed. Lidy DUFFERIN meets the objections that have been raised against the multiplication of "inferior medical practitioners" by the cogent remark-" Nor must | was William Davey, mariner and diver, and he it be forgotten that the choice does not lie was charged with resisting and obstructing the between the most highly educated lady doctor and the hospital assistant, but between the hospital assistant and the employment dant came in smoking a cigar. Those who are expecting to travel the tedious road from Hankow to Ichang on their way to the celebrated Yangtse gorges, will be pleased to learn that the river has suddenly shortened itself by some twenty miles. One of the many long bends which the river is for ever carving out for itself afresh in the soft alluvial mud of this summer, and the changel has at last become widened sufficiently to allow steamers to pass and so shorten their upward journey three to Your hours. This neck which has been gradually perrowing for some years past, owing to the burrent sating away at the two converging banks, is situated just above the upper end of Sunday Island or Tion-haing-chow-Stars of Heaven banks—as it is poetically and aptly denominated by the natives: the sandbanks being almost as numerous and as unfathomable as the stars of heaven. This reach is the crus of the navigation on the "King" River, as the branch of the Yangtse from the Tungting Lake up to the Tiger's Teeth Gorge-the King-men or Gate of King-from the old kingdom of that name, is called. Curiously enough it is upon this bend, now relegated to the swamp and saudbank of a drying river bed, that is situated th only District City passed upon the interminable windings of the river through the plain. He finds the specific charges against his predecassor "not proven;" but he scutely adds, that if the late Governor had really held a high place in popular estimation, there would not be as many people now ready to speak against him, as there are to speak in his favour; and the Emperor cancels the authorisation to build the temple. The Chinese principle of sunobling man after his death for his own merits, and sometimes for these of his offspring, sounds ourious at first in Western ears, but there is a great déal of sound sense in it. Our system of giving a man bereditary rank during his lifetime is based upon the theory that his descendents will necessarily be worthy of him, which is by no manus always the case; the Chinese theory is that if a man has shown himself eminent in any way, the eminence, must be due to his ancestors, which is much more reasonable. In an instance like this, of the grant of posthumons honeurs to a man for his own merits, the Chinese carry into practice the axiom. "Call no man happy until he b dead." Not until the man is in his grave do they believe that a dispassionate verdict can be passed on his life; and even then they are no led away by the maxim, De mortuis nil nici bonum: they allow his demerits to be represented as well as his services, and, as in this case, the Emperor does not mind confessing that he has made a mistake. But if this Governor had as many people to speak against him after he was deed as to speak in his favour, -human nature refusing to obey his hwith commands on the 4th being generally kindly to those who can trouble instant. them no more he must have been a very un-

CHINA AND THE CHINESE ARMY.

Lieutenant-Younghusband, K.D.G., who last year travelled overland from Peking to Cashmere, delivered a lecture at the United Service On London. Institution at Simla on the 5th October, on China and the Chinese army. General Chapman was in the chair. Lieutenant Younghusband dealt more particularly with Manchuria and Chinese Turkistan. The former he described as a rich and very beautiful land and a very valuable province of the thinese Empire. Both on this account and as the home of the present dynasty it was receiving much attention from the Chinese Government. Its military resources were especially looked after. At Kirin there was a large arsenal with extensive and valuable machinery, all managed entirely by Chinamen, Turkistan was a very different land. It was nearly all desert, with small cases, where towns were situated. Rain hardly over fell. Water was obtained principally from streams which flowed from the Tienshan and other mount.ins. China's held on this distant province was stronger than was sometimes supposed. The indigenous population have a most profound respect for the Chinese. Throughout the wide parts of Central Asia the people had a much deeper respect for China than for either Englaud or Russia, and considered China as far the greatest Power. As regards the Chinese army, beyond the special force organized in the European fashion for the defence of Peking. it hardly existed except on paper. Both it the war against Yakub Heg and in the Tonquin war troops had to be specially raised for the eccasion, and this was done with the greatest difficulty. Although the Chinese look with some contempt on military art. they have produced some good Generals, of whom Tio Tung Tsang, the subjugator of Kasagar, was a notable example. The tenacity and endurance displayed in the Kashgar campaign were something extraordinary. Recent events have stirred up the Chinese Government, and they have now acquired a large quantity of European war material. General Chapman paid a warm compliment to Lieutenant Younghusband for his exterprising journey. He considered it a gratifying sign of the times that the spirit of adventure was nowadays prompting many Englishmen to undertake hazardous journeys for the sake of military and commercial exploration. Information had been lately received, he said, that the Rev. H. Lansdell, who had travelled much in Asiatic Russia, and would shortly arrive at Leh.

LEPROSY IN INDIA. The Government of India did a very wise and humane act in requesting all the Local Governments to send in reports as to the extent of leprosy in India and the management of leper asylums and what steps were taken for the segregation of the sexes. The answers of the | Hongkong Hotel Company's Share $170 per Local Governments are not pleasant reading. They "show that the number of lepers who come under organised relief in institutions maintained by charity or assisted by Government amount only to about one percent, of the number of lepers actually known to exist in the country, and in these institutions orders for the merregation of the sexes are not always suferced." In India, according to the census of 1881, there are 131.618, and these figures, in the opinion | Perak, Tin Mining and Smelting Company of the Governor-General in Council do not afford a true measure of the disease. Thus there are Punjom and Sunghie Due Samantan Mining about 120,000 lepars wandering about the land propagating and spreading the disease. The Perak Sugar Cultivation Company-Tls. 18 per Resolution of the Covernment of India states: -" dical science, though it can alleviate the sufferings of individuals, has as yet discovered no care for leprosy; and the Governor-General in Conneil is assured that no measure could effectually stamp out the disease which stopped short of the absolute regregation of the sease and the confinement for life of all affected by it. Such a measure would not only be repugnant to public opinion at the present time, but would Ohinese Imperial Loan of 1884 B-3 per cen in India be perfectly impracticable." The abolition of suites was contrary to the opinion. of the time. Public opinion must be in a very diseased state if it supports the right of a man to propagate a leathsome contagious malady. It might not be possible to confine all the lepers in India, but compulsory, sogregation should, at least, be enforced when the malady arrives at the stage from which contagion may occur. This is, according to the best authorities, when depresy becomes open sores, or, as Dr. Carter states, the direct or indirect conveyance of the disease outside the body from person to person by leprous matter from leprous sores. Thousands of lepers are now wandering about the land with open sores. To sheck this evil, the Government of India. states, is perfectly impracticable. It is hard to understand what they mean by impracticable. --Surely Local Governments could satablish sayinms as the small and poor State of Norway has done, and by means of them decreased the disease 45 per cent in thirty years. No doubt this would cost money, but a civilised Government should manage its finances with sufficient skill to leave some money to be spent on an institution for the checking of the most leathsome disease that ever broke the heart of man to see. The Government of India close their Resolution with the following words:-" After carefully considering the subject, his Excellency in Connoil has arrived at the conclusion that, for the present at all events, it is impossible for Government to attempt to do more than encourage the grant of medical and charitable relief of lepers in voluntary hospitals' and laper asylums. In affording medical relief in such institutions, the necessity of strictly enforcing the segregation of the seres should be invariably kept in view; and his Excellency in Council desires that this condition should be imposed in the case of every institution for the relief w of lepers which receives aid from public fands, and that every effort should be made to induce the supporters of institutions of the kind main-tained by voluntary contributions to adopt a rule of similar strictness." The conclusion is somewhat lame and impotent. Lepers in voluntheir free will. The Byoulla and Poons hurrumshallas allow lopers a shelter, and under such circumstances it can scarcely be questioned that the collection of lepers is of little benefit to the class, while it is certain that such congregation wromock ... | M.03 | 140 is a danger to other persons in the establishment. As we wrote some months ago in discussing the subject, "Simple shelter and doles of grain, or annas wherewith to purchase grain, however charitable, are of no value as regards the great desiderata, viz., the cure, if possible, and the prevention of leprosy." The Government of India is correct in saying that no cure has yet been discovered for leprosy, but still at the same time it is known to be a disease which may be checked at least temporarly by medical treatment aided by liberal diet. No benefit, however, can be derived from the medical treatment without a liberal dist, and a liberal diet is not given to them in such institutions as the Byculla and Poona Dhurrumshallas. Leprosy is at present increasing in European countries, and there is no resson why Europeans in the East should be any longer exempt at they hitherto practically have been exempt. For with contract it is also augmented. It is the bounden; duty of the Government of India to check the increase of the disease. The least Government can do is to insist on compulsory segregation when the malady arrives at that stage from which contagion may occur. In in-
